The fifth annual Spread The Light event was held at Rocket Chevrolet in Shelby, on Jan. 9 at 5 pm. The Spread The Light event was created to promote pride in our local safety forces, partnership in all of Richland County, and peace in our neighborhoods.

This special event honors police, fire, and safety forces that help keep us safe day after day. Blue and red lightbulbs were given out with the hope that the community will display these lights on their front porch or business during the week of Jan. 10 through 15. This is an easy way for Richland County to show support of police, firefighters, EMS and first responders.

We ACT representative Angel Singleton and Paula Caldwell opened the event and thanked the generous contributors and sponsors that made the night possible. Shelby Mayor Steve Schag and the Richland County Sheriff's Office expressed their appreciation for all that goes into planning this event.

"The National Anthem" was sung by Caroline Williams, former Miss Ohio 2019. Chaplain Rob Kurtz gave remarks and an invocation.

Doc Stumbo introduced Miss Ohio, Lora Current, who gave a heartfelt thanks for all that law enforcement and first responders do to keep us safe.

Special guests Ohio Senator Mark Romanchuk and Commissioner Cliff Mears spoke to the crowd and gave their full support of law enforcement and praised Richland County for doing a superb job with continuing to keep Richland County a safe place to live and visit.

There was a presentation of a proclamation, endorsed by all county officials. Ohio State Representative Marilyn John spoke about how the beautiful sunset in the horizon reflects how the brave men and women shine brightly in our community. Shelby Police Chief Lance Combs, Mansfield Fire Chief Steve Strickling and Richland County Sheriff Sheldon all spoke as well.

City of Ontario Mayor Randy Hutchinson was also in attendance.

Guests were treated to pizza, cookies and hot chocolate.

A special thank you to the following contributors and sponsors that made Spread The Light possible:

We ACT members Angel Singleton and Brigitte Coles for organizing the event, City of Shelby Mayor Steve Schag for helping get the venue at Rocket Chevrolet, Gionino's Pizza in Shelby provided pizza, Sweet Dreams Bakery and Market in Shelby provided cookies, McDonald's in Shelby provided cookies, Cornell's IGA in Shelby provided cookies, Mr. Ed Gutshall ran the sound system and microphone, Tim Hortons in Mansfield provided hot chocolate, Doc Stumbo and Sheriff Sheldon provided blue lights and Mansfield Parks Department provided bottled water.

The Protectors of Lexington

By Bob Carter

They were just a group of boys and a few men but they were more than that! Way back in 1975, a bunch of Boy Scouts from Troop 131 got an idea (with prodding from their Scout Master) to build a Revolutionary War cannon for the upcoming bicentennial celebration the next year.

There were skeptics at first, but someone found an old horse-drawn wagon and there were the wheels and axles, the basics for a full sized cannon. The boys and fathers would do the rest.

Charles Elbert, an engineer at Ohio Brass Company, did the research and drew plans for the cannon construction. The wagon had been painted orange by the previous owner and the scouts spent many meeting nights scraping the blasted paint off.

Elbert found oak for the cannon frame — or trails as they were called — and prodded Leppert Machine Company in Mansfield to build the barrel.

Five Eighths wall steel tubing was the main barrel with another piece of steel tubing layered over part of that. The end was threaded with a steel plug and welded into place.

One hundred and fifty feet of steel cable, was wound over the tubes. The boys also wound thousands of feet of fiber glass roving, liberated from Ohio Brass, over that until they gained the needed shape of a real historic cannon barrel. It was stronger than original cast barrels.

Elbert would show up at the weekly Boy Scout meeting with handmade iron accessory pieces. Some he fabricated at home while others somehow were “government pieces” from the Ohio Brass works.

Leppert Machine only charged for the scrap price of steel, $64. They also sent word to not come back for another.

The finished barrel was loaded with a half pound of black powder and test fired laying in the back of a pick-up parked in a corn field. It was the first thunderous boom of the Scouts’ great project.

As the artillery project neared completion, Scout mothers found patterns to make sure every boy had a colonial-era uniform to wear.

The Robert Castor VFW post donated the hats. They also bought single F gun powder for the troop. Each shot used half a pound of powder. These were not the usual Boy Scout meeting nights.

One time an inspector showed up unannounced to see how the troop was being run. On a second trip he said they were running a boy’s club, not a Boy Scout Troop. Elbert and a couple of the boys’ fathers helped him find the door.

The Scout Troop 131 Artillery boys took part in 13 parades and events in the summer of 1976. They garnered a write up in Boys Life (The Boy Scout National magazine) and the Mansfield News Journal.

But as time passed the boys outgrew their uniforms and an idiot kid in California loaded their cannon with high-powered gun powder and blew it up injuring bystanders.

The national Scout office banned the use of gun powder. The full sized cannon is now on loan to a local French and Indian War reenactment club and still pleases crowds with its magnificent thunderous “BOOM.”

Boy Scout Troop 131 is the direct descendant of old Troop One, first chartered in 1935. It is the oldest continuing organization in Lexington except for churches. The Presbyterian Church was the first sponsor.

In Your Hometown: Reducing Prescription Drug Prices

By Senator Sherrod Brown

This year, we are finally making progress in our efforts to bring down the cost of prescription drugs for Ohio seniors.

We know that too many Ohioans struggle to afford the prescription drugs they need — it’s one of the biggest costs facing so many families, especially seniors on Medicare.

Prescription drugs are also often among the most overpriced products people buy. There is no reason most of these drugs need to be as expensive as they are, other than corporate greed.

There are a lot of factors that contribute to keeping prices high. One of them is fees charged by companies that most customers don’t even know exist, called pharmacy benefit managers, or PBMs. And after years of effort, this week the agency in charge finally announced steps to rein in the fees PBMs charge, and pass those cost savings on to Ohioans at the pharmacy counter.

These PBMs are essentially middlemen. We’ve already done important work to ban pharmacy gag clauses, increase transparency, and ban the predatory PBM practice called “spread pricing.”

But we have more work to do. PBMs also charge what are known as “direct and indirect remuneration,” or D-I-R Fees, to pharmacies. Those pharmacies, especially smaller independent pharmacies, are then often forced to pass those fees on to customers in the form of higher prices, or risk closing their businesses and leaving their communities without a local pharmacy.

These unnecessary fees have gone up dramatically over the last decade. In June, the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services — or CMS — reported that pharmacy

DIR fees rose by 91,500 percent from 2010 to 2019. (And no, that’s not a typo — we really mean 91 thousand percent.)

In some cases, the fees can be so high and eat up so much of small pharmacies’ budgets, it puts them out of business. Over the last two years, 250 independent pharmacies in Ohio have closed, in part because DIR fees have made it impossible for them to remain in business.

These fees serve virtually no purpose, other than to raise prices for seniors and raise costs for pharmacies.

It’s why I introduced the bipartisan Pharmacy DIR Reform to Reduce Senior Drug Costs Act last year. And it’s also why I joined with a bipartisan group of my colleagues to write to CMS in October, asking the agency to act to eliminate these DIR fees, to help lower prescription drug prices for seniors on Medicare Part D. And CMS is heeding our call, and finally taking action.

CMS has the authority to take many steps on its own to curb these fees, and they estimate that the change we’re asking for will save Medicare beneficiaries between $7 and $9 billion on their prescriptions. This week, they began taking the actions we called for, issuing a proposed rule that would get these fees under control and pass on cost savings to seniors.

Over the coming weeks and months, I’ll be monitoring the work CMS is doing, to ensure the agency follows through on its promise to bring down these fees, and save Ohioans money at the pharmacy.

With so many seniors on fixed incomes worried about rising drug prices, we need to stop these corporate middlemen from making the problem worse. And we need to make sure our local pharmacies can continue to serve their communities.

LOCAL CHILDREN participated in the Summer Zone at the Salvation Army thanks to support from a Summertime Kids grant from Richland County Foundation. The Richland County Foundation is accepting grant applications from nonprofit organizations for its Summertime Kids (STK) grant program. The grants allow nonprofit agencies to provide safe, fun-filled activities for Richland County children during the summer months. Grant amounts range from $300-$2,500. Last year, a committee that included Foundation Board of Trustee and community members awarded over $44,000 in STK grants. For information contact Community Investment Officer Siera Marth-May at smarth@rcfoundation.org or call 419-525-3020 to make sure a program complies with the focus and guidelines. ## Gibbs presses FDA on vaccine FOIA timeline

Following reports that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) was estimated to take more than five decades releasing coronavirus vaccine data, Congressman Bob Gibbs wrote to FDA Acting Commissioner Janet Woodcock blasting the agency and urging the FDA to comply with a recent court order mandating a more expedient release.

Last week, District Court Judge Mark Pittman ordered the agency to speed up their response to a Freedom of Information Act request by the Public Health and Medical Professionals for Transparency.

Gibbs wants to make sure the agency is sticking to the court-ordered schedule.

“Operation Warp Speed and other associated efforts helped develop a vaccine for COVID-19 in less than a year,” said Gibbs. “It is unconscionable for the FDA to think it will take the better part of this century to release the data used to approve the Pfizer/BioNTech vaccine. Actions like this only serve to decrease the already low amount of trust the American people have in public institutions and bureaucrats who try to obfuscate their responsibilities to the people they serve. I applaud Judge Pittman for ordering the FDA to begin a more reasonable release schedule and urge the FDA to follow the court order.”

Red Cross says continuing national blood crisis may put patients at risk

The American Red Cross is facing a national blood crisis – its worst blood shortage in more than a decade. Dangerously low blood supply levels are posing a concerning risk to patient care and forcing doctors to make difficult decisions about who receives blood transfusions and who will need to wait until more products become available.

Blood and platelet donations are critically needed to help prevent further delays in vital medical treatments, and donors of all blood types — especially type O — are urged to make an appointment now to give in the weeks ahead.

In recent weeks, the Red Cross had less than a one-day supply of critical blood types and has had to limit blood product distributions to hospitals. At times, as much as one-quarter of hospital blood needs are not being met.

The Red Cross continues to confront relentless challenges due to COVID-19, including about a 10% overall decline in the number of people donating blood as well as ongoing blood drive cancellations and staffing limitations. Additionally, the pandemic has contributed to a 62% drop in blood drives at schools and colleges.

Like many employers across the country, the Red Cross is currently experiencing staffing challenges and has been forced to cancel blood drives within our region. If a donation appointment is not immediately available, or your appointment is canceled, we ask that you please schedule or reschedule for the next available appointment.

The Red Cross is working as quickly to address this challenge by actively recruiting phlebotomists who want to be part of our lifesaving mission. The Red Cross offers paid phlebotomy training. Those interested in learning more about being a phlebotomist are encouraged to visit RedCrossBlood.org.

“Winter weather across the country and the recent surge of COVID-19 cases are compounding the already dire situation facing the blood supply,” said Dr. Baia Lasky, medical director for the Red Cross. “Please, if you are eligible, make an appointment to give blood or platelets in the days and weeks ahead to ensure no patient is forced to wait for critical care.”

The Red Cross and the NFL are partnering this January, during National Blood Donor Month, to urge individuals to give blood or platelets and help tackle the national blood shortage. Those who come to give blood, platelets or plasma in January will automatically be entered for a chance to win a getaway to Super Bowl LVI in Los Angeles. As an extra thank-you from the Red Cross, those who come to donate will also be automatically entered to win a home theater package and a $500 e-gift card. Terms apply; visit RedCrossBlood.org/SuperBowl

Ball planned for Saturday

“A Midwinter’s Night Masquerade Ball” will be held at Richland Academy of the Arts. The annual father-daughter ball will be held on Saturday, Jan. 15, at 6 pm. This event is sponsored by The Vault Wine Bar.

This special father-daughter ball will include dinner, dancing, photos and more. All princesses are invited to wear their favorite party dress and dancing shoes. Doors for the masquerade ball will open at 6 pm for hors d’oeuvres. Each party guest will be announced in the banquet hall for a celebratory feast at 6:30 pm.

Attendees will also have the opportunity to bid on beautifully designed slippers designed by Richland Academy’s Dance Company members, where winners will be announced at the end of the evening. This event will enchant your daughter and be a special memory forever in her heart.

Tickets to the ball for a king and one princess are $76 with dinner, gifts, dancing and photos included. Each additional princess is $38. Tickets must be purchased by Friday, Jan. 14 at noon.

For more information or to buy a ticket, call Richland Academy at 419-522-8224.

In addition to blood donors, the Red Cross also needs the help of volunteers to support critical blood collections across the country. Blood drive volunteers play an important role by greeting, registering, answering questions and providing information to blood donors throughout the donation process. Blood transportation specialists — another volunteer opportunity — provide a critical link between blood donors and blood recipients by delivering blood to hospitals in communities across the country. To volunteer to support Red Cross blood collections, visit redcross.org/volunteertoday.

Each Red Cross blood drive and donation center follows safety and infection control standards and additional precautions — including face masks for donors and staff, regardless of vaccination status — have been implemented to help protect the health of all those in attendance. Donors are asked to schedule an appointment prior to arriving at the drive.

Donors can also save up to 15 minutes at the blood drive by completing a RapidPass®. With RapidPass®, donors complete the pre-donation reading and health history questionnaire online, on the day of donation, from a mobile device or computer. To complete a RapidPass®, follow the instructions at RedCrossBlood.org/RapidPass or use the Red Cross Blood Donor App.

To donate blood, individuals need to bring a blood donor card or driver’s license or two other forms of identification that are required at check-in.

Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also must meet certain height and weight requirements.

At a time when health information has never been more important, the Red Cross is screening all blood, platelet and plasma donations from self-identified African American donors for the sickle cell trait. This additional screening will provide Black donors with an additional health insight and help the Red Cross identify compatible blood types more quickly to help patients with sickle cell disease who require trait-negative blood.

Blood transfusion is an essential treatment for those with sickle cell disease, and blood donations from individuals of the same race, ethnicity and blood type have a unique ability to help patients fighting sickle cell disease.

Donors can expect to receive sickle cell trait screening results, if applicable, within one to two weeks through the Red Cross Blood Donor App and the online donor portal at RedCrossBlood.org

North Central Ohio Industrial Museum collection expands

The North Central Ohio Industrial Museum stands on a hill within sight of two different industrial districts in Mansfield: one that made its impact on the world in times gone past; the other is making its history right now.

The museum presents two different showcases: one is the historic past, with all the people and places and inventions that created the 19th and 20th centuries; the other is very much of the new era in which we live today, vital and impressive, and already integral to your life in ways that you may not yet imagine.

Industry and manufacturing thrives today in North Central Ohio because of the groundwork laid by former generations: when America was an agricultural empire, we made the harvesters; when the country moved by rail, we made the trolley parts; and when they took to the highways, we manufactured the tires.

This was a city connecting the world with electrical components, and connected to American homes through millions of name-brand appliances.

But most importantly, it was a city that manufactured ideas — known for generating new concepts that impacted the nation: game-changing technology and innovations that revised America’s assumptions about the quality of life.

A new artist rendering of an Inventor’s Corner “Inventing the Future Display” will include original patent drawings and prototypes from NCO area inventors.

Located at the Ohio State Reformatory, 100 Reformatory Rd., Mansfield, the museum operates under the same hours as the reformatory. Winter hours run from Nov. 7 to March 31 and are Thursday–Sunday, 11 am to 4 pm. The museum is closed for all holidays.

STINGEL ELEMENTARY in Ontario held a special event in conjunction with the American Federation of Teachers on Thursday, Jan. 6. The staff of Stingel served parents dropping off their students "coffee at the curb" and gave them some information about the importance of reading from AFT and their Reading Opens the World campaign to encourage good reading habits at home in the new year. Then, all Stingel students were able to pick out a book to take home provided by AFT. Students loved their new books. Tonya Winningham, president of the Ontario Federation of Teachers, worked in conjunction with Stingel Principal Kimberly Johnson, to bring the two events together at Stingel. Ohio Federation of Teachers President Melissa Cropper and representative Jill Jones attended the event and helped serve coffee and pick out books. Many Stingel teachers served coffee and wished parents a happy new year.

MRS. MUZIC was chosen as the Ontario Middle School January MVP by Annalee Stover. Speaking of Muzic, Stover said, "Have you ever met someone who just makes you want to be a better person? Mrs. Muzic does that each day for staff and students alike. She takes time to really get to know her students from the beginning of each year and continues to ensure that students have an environment in which they can learn and also grow into great people. Her courses allow her to help students with cooking, career planning, budgeting, sewing and many other life skills. She teaches all of these concepts in ways that are fun, engaging, and applicable to the real world. She also leads the FCCLA club and really tries to help students create various activities for the student body that are fun and helpful to our community. She continuously has a positive attitude and outlook on each day, and that positivity is contagious. I am so privileged to have the opportunity to work with this teacher and friend everyday."

ONTARIO'S BRYAN MOLONEY brings the ball across the circle in the game Friday night with Riverdale here at Ontario. The Warriors (8-0) won a thriller from the Falcons, 58-56, their first close game of the season. Moloney was one of eight Warriors in the game in double figures with his 10 points.

January 13, 1999 — The National Basketball Association (NBA) superstar Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls announces his retirement from professional basketball, for the second time, in front of a crowd at Chicago's United Center. Jordan had an outstanding college career, but left the University of North Carolina after his junior year when he was selected by the Chicago Bulls as the third-overall pick in the first round of the 1984 NBA draft. Jordan helped the Bulls make the playoffs in each of his first six seasons on the team. In 1991, he got to his first NBA finals, where he led his team to the first of three consecutive championships. Shaken and disillusioned by the murder of his father and an NBA investigation into allegations of illegal betting (of which he was eventually cleared), Jordan announced his retirement from basketball in 1993. He signed a minor league contract with the Chicago White Sox baseball team and was assigned to a White Sox affiliate team, the Birmingham Barons. Though his very presence on the field drew crowds, Jordan batted only .202 in his first summer, striking out 114 times in 127 games. By March 1995, he had decided to put down his bat and return to the basketball court. After a disappointing finish in the 1994-'95 season, Jordan (aided by his old allies Scottie Pippen and Coach Phil Jackson, as well as Dennis Rodman), turned things around for the Bulls. Jordan led the league in scoring that year with 30.4 points per game and helped his team to a 72-10 record, the best regular season finish in the history of the NBA. The Bulls won three more consecutive NBA championships in 1996, 1997 and 1998, becoming the first team in league history to win three straight championships twice. In his 12 full seasons with the Bulls, Jordan was voted the NBA's Most Valuable Player five times and won six NBA Finals MVP awards, one for each final his Bulls played. Jordan's second retirement announcement came after bitter tension between general manager Jerry Krause and Coach Jackson resulted in Jackson's leaving Chicago. Though he had earlier stated publicly that he would not play for any coach besides Jackson, Jordan explained his decision to retire by saying he had lost the drive and desire that was necessary to continue playing at such a high level, and that he wanted to spend more time with his family. In January 2000, Jordan became part-owner and president of basketball operations of the Washington Wizards, a struggling NBA franchise. After the Wizards won only 19 games in Jordan's first full season in this position, he decided to rebuild the team, hiring the former Bulls coach Doug Collins. Jordan, 38, got himself into playing shape and came out of retirement yet again in September 2001 as a free agent with the Wizards. Though he scored his 30,000th career point on Jan. 4, 2002, against his former team, the Bulls, Jordan was never able to lead the Wizards into playoff competition. He retired for the third and final time on April 16, 2003. History.com

Foundation accepting scholarship applications

The Richland County Foundation announced its college and career technical education scholarship applications for the 2022-'23 school year are now available at richlandcountyfoundation.org.

The Foundation has 89 scholarship funds. Last year the scholarships ranged from $250 to $6,000 with 266 awarded totaling $531,300.

New applicants and high school seniors must have at least a 2.5 grade point average (GPA), returning applicants must have at least a 2.0 GPA, attend an accredited school and be a resident or high school graduate of Richland County. The deadline for college scholarship applications is April 1.

The Foundation also awards career technical education scholarships to individuals who want to obtain certifications and credentials at accredited technical institutions.

There is a rolling deadline for CTE scholarships to meet various enrollment requirements.

In aligning with Ohio's Attainment Goal, the Foundation wants to help fill the gap between job openings and certified employees as well as lead the way to support workforce development through CTE scholarships.

Scholarship awards are based on financial need. These are not recurring scholarships so students must re-apply each year.

Other scholarships offered include the Steve Shoenfelt Memorial Scholarship for area high school swimmers and the Mansfield Aviation Club learn how to fly scholarship.
