Sixth annual Heritage Days celebrated in South Park

Photos and Article By Traci Little

The sixth annual Heritage Days took place at South Park in Manfield this past weekend. The event is put on by the Richland Early American Center for History (REACH) each year. Guests enjoyed discovering what life was like in early America during the 18th and 19th Century from living historical reenactors.

There were crafts, trades, games, demonstrations, blacksmithing, open hearth cooking demonstrations and civilian and military reenactments.

Admission and parking were free to the public. REACH is a not-for-profit organization for the preservation and education of local Richland County and Ohio early history.

The weekend opened at 10 am on Saturday with a ceremony, moment of silence, flag raising and firing of muskets in front of the 1812 Blockhouse.

Just following the opening ceremony, guests moved over in front of the 1808 Petersburg Cabin where members of the work crew for the Cabin and Blacksmith/Coopers Shop received a nice plaque recognizing their hard work and dedication. Gregory Boyce, a financial representative from Modern Woodmen's Hometown Hero program/MWA Financial Services, presented the awards to these deserving individuals. These people are the backbone of REACH.

Tom Pappas said that this award presentation was a nice surprise. He got a bit emotional saying, "This certainly was a labor of love and there were many health challenges and other hurdles that our team had to endure along the way, so this was a nice gesture!"

These honorees not only received a plaque, but a $100 award grant to be donated to the charitable organization of their choice (they chose the Richland Early American Center for History.)

"Volunteers from the foundation of a strong community," says Boyce. "Modern Woodmen's Hometown Hero Program gives us the chance to thank those who selflessly give their time to make the community a better place." For information or to get involved, contact Boyce at 419-571-2539 or Gregory.a.boyce@mwarep.org.

THE ENTERTAINMENT EXAMINER
 — By Ian Stumbo —

It's been a long time (29 years to be exact) and fans finally get a sequel to the beloved Halloween classic Hocus Pocus.

Hocus Pocus 2, streaming exclusively on Disney+, brings back the Sanderson sisters again played by Bette Midler, Kathy Najimy and Sarah Jessica Parker, as they are brought back to life to wreck havoc and cause chaos on modern day Salem.

It's really too bad that sequels that take much too long to be made have so many problems. Few have been even better than the original (Top Gun: Maverick is a prime example). While it's great to see these ladies play these wonderful parts again, the movie has very little plot and what it does have is not interesting or engaging. The movie features three young high school friends who are tricked into bringing back the sisters and have to figure out how to get them to go back to where they came from.

The three young actresses are mediocre at best and do not have the charm or sass that Omri Katz, Vinessa Shaw and Thora Birch brought to the original. It's nice to see Doug Jones return as Billy Butcherson but even he can't save the plot.

The movie opens with the Sanderson sisters as young girls who discover their spell book. This scene takes way too long. Also the musical number from the original is classic but this one felt more like they were singing covers of Blondie's "One Way or Another" and Elton John's "The Bitch is Back" with different lyrics.

Many are enjoying this movie for the nostalgia and are saying yeah sure it's great. The best scenes in the movie are how they make their way through a Walgreens and when they enter a house and hear a voice which turns out to be an Alexa device.

While it was great seeing these actresses return to their classic roles, the movie around it had a very uninteresting plot, boring side characters and the ending felt like a Disney channel movie of the week. It's too bad they didn't make this movie fun and scary like the original, it could have used its original writer Mick Garris to punch up the script.

SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIP administrative assistant Robyn Gast was congratulated on her retirement by Springfield Township Fire Department members.

*This Week's Pet
Looking for A Forever Home*

Pit Stop

This one year old is practically perfect outside his kennel. When you walk by him, he acts like he wants to attack and bite you. Please ignore this bad behavior; it does not accurately portray who he is. Once outside, Pit Stop walks perfectly on his leash. He never pulls. He is incredibly sweet and lovable. He seems good with other dogs as well. A volunteer took him to an event at the carrousel, and he was voted best dog there by the crowd (by a long shot). Pit Stop seemed to do well with children at the event as well. He is calm, but Pit Stop does take a while to warm up to new people.

Those interested in meeting any dogs housed at the shelter, the kennels are open 11-4:15 Monday-Friday and 10-2 on Saturday. The dog shelter received a very generous donation, which has allowed the adoption price to drop to $79, which includes spay/neuter, license, microchip and some vaccines. The shelter is located at 810 N. Home Rd., Mansfield. The shelter uses a lot of bleach, detergent and dog treats and welcomes donations.

John announces violent crime reduction grant for sheriff's office

State Rep. Marilyn John (R-Richland County) announced that the Richland County Sheriff's Office is being awarded $106,550 through the Violent Crime Reduction Grant Program. John supported the measure through legislation last year.

"I'm pleased to announce this important funding coming through for our local sheriff's office that's going to better our communities," John said. "Reducing crime and keeping our residents and families safe has always been at the top of my priority list — this measure is helping us make that happen for Richland County."

Last year John cosponsored and voted to support House Bill 110, known as the state operating budget that included the crime reduction grant program.

The funding for the Richland County Sheriff's Office will be used for new staffing to allow for an additional deputy to be assigned to investigate major crimes such as homicide, robbery, burglary, and sexual assault. Additionally, funds will be invested in new technology to assist in preventing and investigating incidents of violent crime.

CARROT APPLE SOUP

Ingredients

- 2 Tbsp. Olive Oil
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 8-10 carrots, peeled and chopped
- 2 apples, peeled and chopped
- 2 celery sticks chopped
- ½ cup white wine to deglaze
- 1 tsp. fresh chopped ginger
- 1 large clove garlic chopped
- ½ t turmeric fresh chopped
- Kosher Salt and Pepper to taste
- Broth to cover (you can use vegetable or chicken)

Instructions

Heat oil in pan. Put in onions and garlic and cook until they just start turning brown. Toss in carrots, celery and apple and cook for a few more minutes. Add wine to deglaze the pan until liquid is reduced by half. Add rest of ingredients and bring to a boil. Reduce temperature and simmer until veggies are soft. Remove from heat and carefully add to blender and puree (BEWARE OF HOT LIQUID). Hold a dishtowel over blender lid so you don't burn your self when you turn it on. Turn on as low as it will go and slowly blend it. You can use an immersion blender for this but you don't get the smooth consistency we are looking for in this soup.

Tips

By Mátiece Thomas

Let me start by asking you a question: How many of you start a new nutrition plan or exercise plan and the next day you hop on the scale expecting results?

Most stop or switch to something else if they do not see results in the first week. It is important to realize that real change takes time, discipline and consistency. When exercising it can take 2-4 weeks to see improvements in your strength and fitness.

At 6-8 weeks you will have noticeable change and in 3-4 months you can overhaul your health and fitness level.

It's important to stick to one plan and ride it out. Don't get discouraged, there will be ups and downs, but remain consistent.

Your body first has to get used to a program, then it will adjust and adapt, that is when you will see progress and change.

I always tell people to give it 90 days when trying something new. Whether that is fitness, nutrition or supplements.

I have my people follow the same timeline when starting a nutrition plan. Eating healthy for a couple days is not going to always show up on the scale or when you look in the mirror.

Give your body time to adjust. If you do not know what to eat, always remember two things, "cut the crap" and eat lean and green. Those two things will give you a great jump start to eating healthy.

I also offer a nutrition PDF that simplifies how to eat healthy and create fat burning meals to reach your goals for those that are interested.

My last tip for today is to STOP weighing yourself daily! Pick one day a week and weigh yourself at the same time on that day each week.

Our weight fluctuates on a daily basis, and when your body is adjusting it fluctuates even more. Do not let the scale sabotage your mindset.

The scale can be a bully if you let it, so don't!

One of my favorite phrases is, "Only You Can Change You."

Take control of your health today and make the changes you need to be a healthier, happier you!

Fall fun abounds at Ramseyer Farm

Photos and Article By Jenna Wolford

As the weather turns cooler and autumn sets in, our thoughts often turn to pumpkins, cider, hay rides and bonfires. A short trip to Ramseyer Farm in Wooster offers all these things and so much more.

Located at 4000 Ramseyer Ln., Wooster, right off OH-585, Ramseyer Farm provides visitors with over 50 family friendly activities and hours of fun for all ages.

Recently I spent the day at Ramseyer with my kids, ages 11 and 14. They are always excited to come to the farm and I love that there are so many activities they love even as they grow older.

We first experienced Ramseyer Farm with a school field trip eight years ago. We have been back multiple times since, and every time we visit we discover newly added attractions.

A few years ago the Tire Patch Playground was added and a massive corn barn was built.

This barn contains 5,000 bushels of shelled corn for families to play, dig and “swim” in. Children love to be covered in the corn, similar to burying someone in the sand and there are plenty of toy dump trucks and tractors for hours of play. This was one of the attractions we came back to multiple times throughout our day, because no matter how old you become, you never get tired of playing in the corn.

New attractions for 2022 include the Cobweb Climber, a 26-foot tall climbing ropes course, the Hillbilly Treadmill, a giant chess board, an over-sized Scarecrow Guess Who, expression swings in which parents and children face each other and an antique crank tractor with working headlights, engine sound and smoking exhaust.

When we arrived, the parking lot looked busy, but with so much to do, we never had to wait in line and were able to jump from one activity to the next.

Some of our favorites included the Pedal Cart Spudway, a jump pad, Rat Racers and a main attraction, the hide & slide hill. This hill features tall slides, fun for all ages. One side of the hill includes slides made from oversized tiling drainage pipe and the hill also includes tunnels for kids to explore.

The other side of the hill, Country Coaster, is a smooth slide much like those found at the county fair but on a larger scale and built into the hill.

After feeding the goats, visiting the chickens and pigs and watching the bunnies, we tried out some of the logic puzzles and shot hoops at the Barnyard Basketball hoops which are cleverly made from grain elevator wagons.

We were able to sling-shot potatoes at targets in the field. Admission includes a few free potatoes with more available for purchase.

There are multiple play areas and smaller slides for younger visitors as well as a potato box maze, straw bale maze and corn crib chutes where children slide into shelled corn.

There are too many attractions to even try list them all, but the website has a map and full list of attractions, many with photos.

For corn maze enthusiasts, Ramseyer doesn't just offer one maze, but two full-sized mazes and a special mini-maze.

The Ohio maze, a yearly feature at the farm, has two miles of trails in eight acres of corn. Each road, river and treaty line is labeled and over 275 signs include interesting facts about Ohio cities, famous Ohioans, Ohio sports figures and Ohio presidents.

The mystery corn maze theme changes each year and is definitely more challenging. This year's design is Super Mario Brothers. A half to full hour is recommended to complete this maze so a mini maze is offered within the larger maze. Both mazes include games to play as visitors traverse the trail.

Ramseyer Farms is a fifth-generation family-owned and operated farm. The 720-acre farm produces pumpkins, wheat, corn, popcorn and soybeans. A hay ride takes visitors on a journey past some of the fields and through a path in the woods.

The sunflower field was open during our visit and we were each allowed to pick a sunflower to take home with us. Sunflower days are held in September each year and offer a great chance to get some beautiful family photos.

Even though we spent the entire day, there was so much to see and do so there were still things we didn't quite have time for. I guess that's why the farm offers a special “bounce back” pass for discounted admission later in the season.

When staying all day you're bound to get hungry and Ramseyer has offerings including chicken strips, fries, cider slushes and roasted corn. Other options are available on special days throughout the season.

As our day turned cooler, we opted for the hot chocolate with whipped cream and it was perfect for a small break in our day. Visitors can even buy s'more and hotdog “roast your own” kits and cook them over the bonfires.

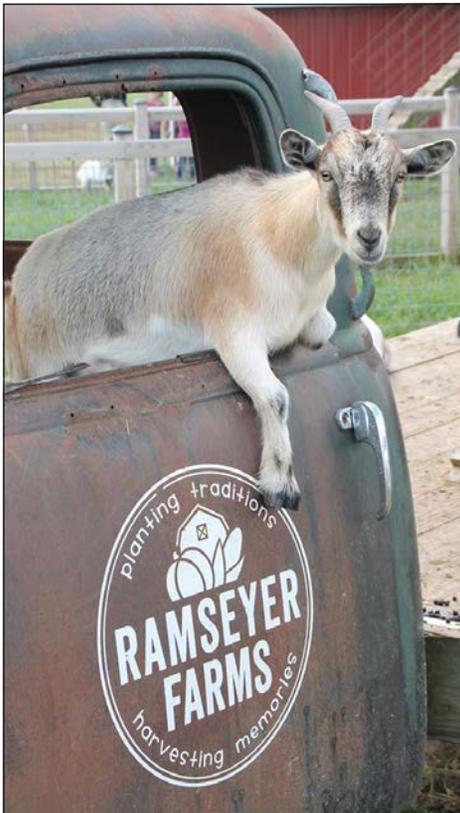

Inside the country store, guests can find gourds, pumpkins, jams, salsa, kettle corn, decorations, toys, candles, soaps, scarecrow making and more. Visiting the store and pumpkin picking does not require an admission ticket into the farm attractions.

This season, the farm is open Wednesdays through Sundays until Oct. 30. For information about the farm, hours, tickets and special events visit <https://ramseyerfarms.com> or call 330-264-0264.

The Hawk's Nest Forge and Cooperage were also open to tour. Mark Cory, a retired history teacher, portrayed Col. William Crawford. He is a student of the time period and invests in the character he portrays. He's more than happy to share his knowledge with others.

His wife Tami Cory portrays Hannah Crawford and had a table of things you might see or use back in that day. She explained things like how they dried tobacco, the money they used, different animal hides, what ladies went the bathroom in under their petty coats (my guess was that it was a gravy bowl), and even the detailed spy book where they would document classified information.

She went on to say, "history is a lot more interesting than just reading about events in a textbook. It's all about people and it's a lot more fun when you can engage with history in a personal way at these types of gatherings." To be able to experience living history, it gives the guests a way to take their knowledge with them in a personal way. Children and adults alike may easily forget history from a textbook, but you'll get more out of it when it's being reenacted right in front of your eyes!

If you can't get enough of these types of events, you'll want to mark your calendars for the 14th annual Schoenbrann Village Trade Faire on Oct. 15 (10-5) and 16 (10-4) in New Philadelphia. Step back in time to experience life on the frontier during the American Revolution. Spend the day browsing the cabins filled with vendors and reenactors. Meet historic figures from the period, hear the blast of musket fire, linger by the campfire and take in the aroma of the cooking over open flames. You'll have the opportunity to purchase 18th Century goods from some of the best vendors in the nation!

In connection with preserving and showcasing the Mansfield 1812 Blockhouse, 1808 Petersburg Cabin, and Hawk's Nest Forge and Cooperage from the same period, REACH seeks to keep these and other parts of our local history from fading into the past. REACH will inform, educate and present the history and life of early American settlers to Richland County and Ohio to all that are interested.

A significant symbol of Mansfield's early settlement, the original Mansfield Block House was built in the fall of 1812 to provide protection from possible Indian attack during the War of 1812. From 1813 to 1816 it functioned as Richland County's first courthouse. This building is a commemorative structure built in the fall of 1906 for the 1908 Mansfield Centennial Exhibition. The building is significant in terms of the city's military history and early settlement.

To make a tax-deductible donation, make a check payable to Richland Early American Center for History, 100 Brinkerhoff Ave., Mansfield, OH 44906.

Gov. DeWine visits KCCC

Governor Mike DeWine visited Knox County Career Center last week. DeWine met with students in Computer Network Technology, Precision Machining, Health Technologies and Cosmetology.

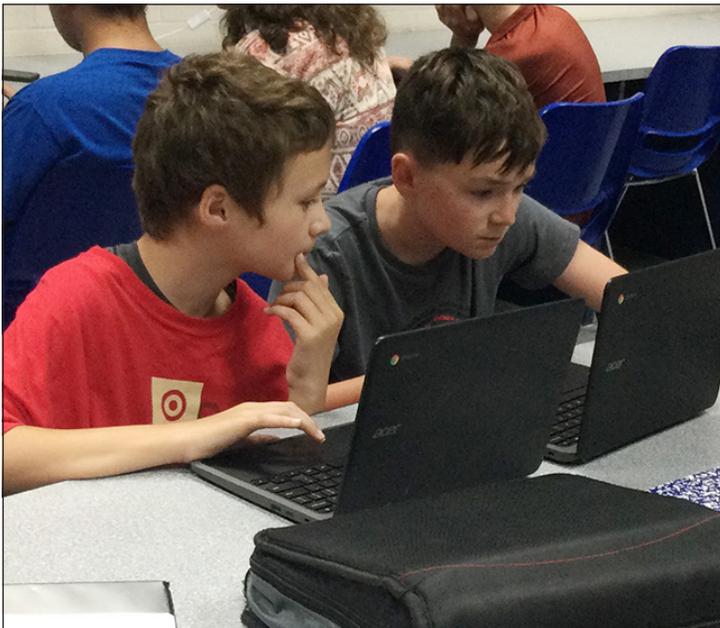

He talked with students about their experience at KCCC, the industry credentials they were earning, and about their future plans upon graduation.

Governor DeWine also spoke with each lab instructor about what students were doing in their respective programs and about their industry.

Business partners from Ariel and Kokosing shared their experiences with him regarding students on early job placement, the impact of career center graduates in their workplace and how they collaborate with different programs at KCCC.

KCCC administrators, along with Mayor Matt Starr and Knox County Commissioners, Thom Collier and Bill Pursel, had the opportunity to speak with Governor DeWine as well about career technical education.

“We were so glad to have Governor DeWine visit our school, interact with our students and staff, and for him to hear about the great opportunities in career tech education and in Knox County,” said Kathy Greenwich, KCCC Superintendent.

Officials will visit OSU-M campus

The game-changing advances we are seeing in the automotive industry continues to have profound impacts on the future of mobility in our nation. Perhaps no one has a closer view of how these technologies are revolutionizing our roads than the engineers and drivers at the Transportation Research Center Inc., North America's most comprehensive automotive proving ground located about 70 miles southwest of Ohio State Mansfield.

Officials from the 4,500-acre proving ground will visit campus on Oct. 11, from noon to 2 pm, to share how they are helping the world's leading transportation companies and innovators conduct complex engineering, research, evaluation and testing on the cars and technologies of the future. They will also offer community members and students a sneak peek into the future by bringing one of their client's cars to campus.

KCCC's car show raises over $3,400 for Knox County Food for the Hungry

Knox County Career Center's (KCCC) Automotive Technology program, led by instructor Don McDaniel, hosted a Car Show/Cruise-in on Sunday, Sept. 25 at KCCC. Entry was by donation only. The event was sponsored by Thorpe Garage out of Johnstown and McDaniel CPA out of Mount Vernon.

KCCC's Culinary Arts program, led by instructor Chef Matt Russo, prepared and sold food for the event. Between the two programs, over $3,400 was raised for Knox County Food for the Hungry.

"I am overwhelmed with the outcome and success of the Automotive Technology Car Show/Cruise-in to benefit Knox County Food for the Hungry. To all who donated their time, donated to the cause, and who attended the show, thank you for making a difference," said McDaniel.

Russo added, "I feel that it is essential that we not only prepare our students for future careers but that we also teach them to give back to their local community. Food for the Hungry is an excellent opportunity to give back to the community that does so much to support us."

"It was a wonderful event for the community and KCCC students and staff to interact while enjoying amazing vehicles all in the name of coming together to support Food for the Hungry. I'm so appreciative of our staff who planned this event, the sponsors, the car owners, and the community visitors who made this day so successful. It is a gift from all of us to show to our students that their work in helping others makes a difference," said Kathy Greenich, superintendent at KCCC.

THE SIXTH GRADE ART CLASSES at Ontario have been learning about Cubism, artist Juan Gris and realism. They worked diligently at drawing pumpkins using charcoal and white pencils to emphasize highlights, mid-tones and shadows. Then the students utilized implied texture, complementary colors, and implied lines to complete their background. They were able to "mash-up" both forms of art to create something new. The students even ripped their pumpkin drawings in half to complete the project.

MR. NIKIFOROW led the Ontario High School Science Club on a leaf walk to identify different types of trees.

DURING THE PAST few weeks, Ontario Middle School students have worked diligently on the aspects needed for their introduction speech. Students were able to put their interview skills to work. The information gathered from the interview and student questionnaire assisted them in creating an outline of the information they would present during their introduction speech. Afterward, there was a small celebration to recognize their hard work.

IN CELEBRATION OF HISPANIC HERITAGE MONTH, Ontario High School students Hugo Estrada Gomez and Jaslyn Ly designed the bulletin board.

Renaissance drama will focus on mental health

The Renaissance continues its popular Black Box Series with the musical drama Next to Normal, a Pulitzer and Tony Award-winning musical that brings life's difficult questions to the forefront through the exploration of mental illness and family.

The musical tells the story of Diana Goodman as she struggles with the ups and downs associated with a diagnosis of bipolar depression; the toll it takes on her family and their shared battles with past trauma.

"It's an incredibly intimate story that tackles hard subjects in a very caring way," says Director Ryan Shealy. "It doesn't shy away from the hard truths about mental health issues, but rather, highlights why it's important to face our struggles and trauma."

Madison graduate and musician Kelly Knowlton plays Diana. "She's not your typical heroine: she is broken and unpredictable and messy, but we still root for her and want to see her find the healing and restoration she needs so badly."

Following the performance on Sunday, Oct. 9, the cast will host a discussion featuring a panel of local mental health practitioners with audience member question and answer time.

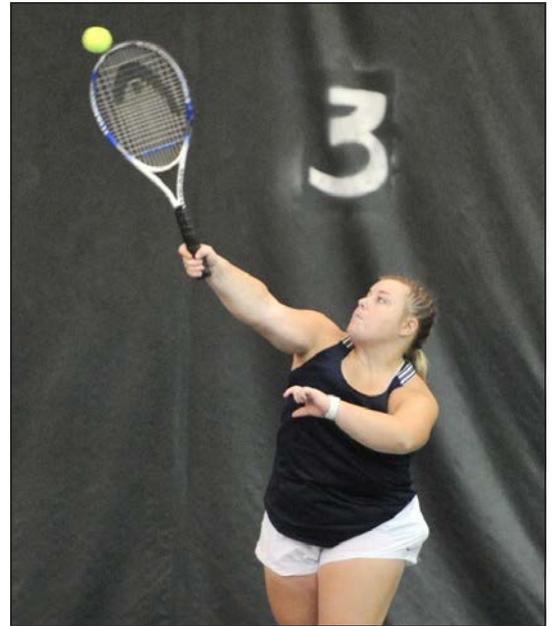

The performance is at Theatre 166, running from Oct. 7-16. Visit Rentickets.org for tickets.

Shelby High School students kicked-off the college application season on Sept. 22. Staff and seniors (along with thousands of other high schools around the country), were asked to answer the question, "Why apply to college?" SHS staff and students wore college apparel and the staff shared their own personal educational journeys with their homeroom classes.
